Nazi Leaders Die Tonight

SECRECY CLOAKS EXECUTION OF
WAR CRIMINALSGoering And 10 Others Are Expected To Hang Soon
After Midnight

NUERNBERG, Oct. 15—Hermann Goering, Joachim von Ribbentrop and nine more of Nazi Germany's top war criminals neared the end of the road today, and by all signs will begin their march to the gallows at midnight (6 p. m. EST).

All of the condemned Nazis save one—Alfred Rosenberg, the chief Nazi ideologist—were reported reading the bible and seeking spiritual solace as their last hours ticked away.

The twilight of the self-aggrandized Nazi "gods" found them obscured by a curtain of military secrecy comparable to that flung over the greatest events of the war.

Glimmers of information through the official fog indicated that the execution of Adolf Hitler's 11 henchmen would begin at midnight and last three hours, and that the bodies would be buried secretly or perhaps cremated—how, when or where no one would say.

Officials said that the Nazis did not know officially that this was their last day before they were to pay on the scaffold for the millions of deaths they were convicted of causing in their ruthless quest for world domination.

But they must have known that the time was near when the judgment of the four-power tribunal was to be executed.

A prison spokesman said Goering, Alfred Jodl, Hans Frank and Arthur Seyss-Inquart all spoke of religion when the German prison doctor saw them this morning.

To a man they were reading the bible, the doctor said, except for Rosenberg.

Ernst Kaltenbrunner, hatchet man in the Gestapo for Heinrich Himmler, had communion in his cell. Frank told the doctor how he remembered the beauty of St. Peter's cathedral in Rome, and how he once tried without success to get Hitler and Rudolf Hess to visit it with him.

SLAVS BOYCOTT
OF CONFERENCE

PARIS, Oct. 15—Yugoslavia boycotted the last day of the Paris peace conference today, charging that it had been held in an "unjust manner" while working on problems of concern to Yugoslavia.

Edward Kardelj, vice premier of Yugoslavia, dealt the final blow to this hurried and unsuccessful conference. It fell just as the delegates were assembling at Luxembourg palace for the farewell ceremony.

In a letter to the conference Kardelj said its decisions on a number of issues in the Italian treaty were of "such a nature that they render it impossible for the Yugoslav government to sign the peace treaty if the main provisions affecting the vital interests of Yugoslavia are not changed."

NO MISUSE OF UNRRA IS FOUND IN YUGOSLAVIA

BELGRADE, Oct. 15—A special three-power UNRRA investigating commission reported today that it had found no evidence of the diversion of large quantities of UNRRA supplies to the Yugoslav army.

The commission said it could "state unreservedly that the great bulk of 2,000,000 tons of UNRRA supplies sent to Yugoslavia has been effectively distributed among the people of the country and undoubtedly has saved millions of lives in Yugoslavia."

A preliminary report of the commission's findings was released after a 10-day investigation of charges that UNRRA supplies had been misused in Yugoslavia, both by the army and the government. A detailed report of the investigation will be made later to UNRRA Director-General F. H. LeGuardia.

Liquor Dealers Ask Injunction Against
Closing Order Here

Hearing on an application for a temporary injunction to restrain enforcement of the ban on the sale of liquor and 6 per cent beer in Circleville during the four-day 40th annual Pumpkin Show was to be held Tuesday afternoon in Pickaway county common pleas court.

The application was filed Tuesday morning by John D. Moore, owner of the Mecca Cafe, 128 West Main street, on behalf of a group of Circleville tavern operators. The hearing was to be before Judge Earl D. Parker of the Pike county common pleas court, Waverly, who was assigned to the case by Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt of the Ohio Supreme court after Pickaway County Common Pleas Judge Emmitt L. Crist said he preferred the injunction suit be heard by another jurist.

Sabotage Marks Pittsburgh
Troubles; Ship Workers
Agree To Talk

By United Press

A rifle bullet was fired into a transformer at the strikebound Pittsburgh utility company today, resulting in widespread power failures, in what was described as the third instance of sabotage since the strike began 22 days ago.

The Duquesne Light Company reported that the bullet struck an "important transformer at its Colfax generating station, and warned that one of the transformer would seriously affect service, already reduced to 35 per cent of normal as a result of the prolonged strike.

In other important labor developments, Hollywood strikers agreed to abandon mass picketing before nine film studios, and 26 New York hospitals were cut off from oxygen supplies as a result of a strike which city officials warned would "cost more than 100 lives a day."

Elsewhere, Atlantic and Gulf coast ship owners offered to reopen separate negotiations with two unions in an attempt to end the long and costly maritime tie-up. The operators said they were ready to submit a proposal which they "sincerely believe will be acceptable."

The latest development in the paralyzing Pittsburgh walkout came as production and maintenance workers prepared to vote in a national labor relations board election to determine whether they wish to split from the independent union now representing the 3,500 strikers.

An insurgent group held a wild mass meeting at Carnegie music hall last night, voting 430 to 128 to reconsider and accept the power company's offer to arbitrate all issues. Less than half the 1,100 (Continued on Page Two)

EXPECTED TO ARRIVE QUICKLY

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 15—Cattlemen today expected the United States' quarantine on Mexican cattle to be lifted "immediately."

A commission of Mexican and American veterinarians have found no signs of hoof and mouth disease in the herds.

The quarantine was imposed last June after a shipment of 316 Brazilian bulls reached Mexico. American authorities feared the bulls might carry the disease. Mexican cattle have been fattening on the farms during the ban, and shipments to the United States can start shortly after the ban is lifted.

Beef, veal, pork and lamb are available in quantity throughout Mexico. In Mexico City, sirloin, T-bone and porterhouse steaks sell at approximately 55 cents per pound.

Dickson And Ferriss Rival
Pitchers For Seventh
Game Of Classic

BULLETIN

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15—The St. Louis Cardinals took a 3-1 lead in the fifth inning of the seventh World Series game here today, blasting 25-game winner Dave Ferriss for four hits and two runs. Joe Dohson relieved Ferriss.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 15—Little Murry Dickson, a pitcher with a fighting heart and a 14-game arm, and big Dave Ferriss, a 25-game winner, went out after the seventh and deciding contest of the World Series today with the St. Louis Cardinals and the Boston Red Sox tied at three games all.

Dickson was Manager Eddie Dyer's choice to make his first season as big time skipper a success. It was the second time in this series the two hurlers had faced one another. In the third game, Dickson gave up three runs in the first inning and eventually was charged with the loss as Ferriss won on a shutout, 4-0.

In that one, Dickson made one mistake. He dished up one fat one to Rudy York, who lifted it out of Fenway Park.

The Cardinals tied up the series by winning the sixth game here Sunday behind Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, 4-1.

Today's game presented a clash of precedents for the two ball clubs.

The Red Sox, in a series for the first time since 1918, have yet to lose a world title fight. Their record for victories dates back to 1903 and shows five victories, and paradoxically in two sets they were forced to the limit.

On the other hand, the Cardinals have never lost a seven-game series. They were forced to the limit on three separate occasions in nine series starts.

Joe Cronin, manager of the Boston Red Sox, who finally brought Tom Yawkey a pennant on peanuts after the Boston owner had spent millions in an effort to mould a championship team, was glad that he had kept Ferriss for this seventh game. He could have gone with his southpaw star in the sixth game but gambled instead Mickey Harris, who didn't have what it takes to beat the Cardinals in their home park.

Ferriss came through for his team in the home yard where he had not lost a game all season.

Truman Announces Price Lift

PRESIDENT TRUMAN is pictured before the microphone as he announced he had ordered removal of government price controls on livestock, meat and all foods and feed derived from livestock.

Housewives May Have To Wait Few Days For Meat

Circleville meat dealers estimated Tuesday that at least two weeks will elapse before beef and pork again become plentiful in retail outlets.

Expressing relief over the wiping out of price controls and slaughtering restrictions the dealers declared that meats will begin to trickle into the retail food establishments almost immediately and that the supply will increase steadily day by day.

However, they pointed out, time must be allowed for the slaughtering and packing houses.

The dealers also predicted that with the arrival of plentiful supplies of meat, lard will undoubtedly reappear and become available to the general public.

It is highly probable, the dealers asserted, that meat prices will be "high" for a short period of time—perhaps for 30 days—and then the uncontrolled prices will decrease steadily as they again become dictated by the law of supply and demand.

Many Circleville food stores had no meat for sale Tuesday although a few places reported meager supplies of beef and lamb and that those stocks were sold out quickly.

Slaughtering in Circleville and vicinity reported they expect to resume unrestricted operations very soon and that their volume of slaughtering will likely increase steadily until the market is restored to normal.

NEPTUNIUM 237
ATOMIC ENERGY

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 15—A new source of atomic energy has been found, but scientists say it does not give off enough energy for either atomic bombs or peacetime use.

Dr. Glen T. Seaborg, co-discoverer of plutonium, the element that makes atomic bombs atomic, told of the finding of the new radioactive compound—neptunium 237—before the American chemist society's California section last night.

Seaborg said that neptunium 237 had been split by nuclear fission, like uranium 235 and plutonium 239, to provide atomic energy. He said, however, that the neptunium isotope had so slow a rate of fission that its discovery "will be of more scientific interest than practical value."

Seaborg said also that University of California scientists had succeeded in creating the world's heaviest element, an isotope of curium.

It is curium 242 and is believed to exist nowhere else in the world but in a carefully-guarded vial on the university campus, said Seaborg.

President Blames Congressmen For Failure
Of Stabilization Program; Wage, and All But Rent Control Doomed

By LYLE C. WILSON

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—President Truman turned from hold-the-line stabilization today with an order to speed up removal of wage controls and most price controls except on rents.

Meat ceilings went off today at the opening of your nearest butcher shop. Mr. Truman announced the freeing of meat and the decontrol speedup in a radio address last night. He said congress had given him a law so feeble he could not make it work.

Flour and related products such as bread, and radios, electric irons and coffee are expected to be among the first to be decontrolled under Mr. Truman's speedup. Dairy products—milk, butter and cheese—already are free of ceilings, and Mr. Truman's action left little prospect that they would be recontrolled.

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson today formalized Mr. Truman's decision by signing an OPA order removing price ceilings from all livestock and all products of livestock.

Prices soared as livestock markets opened control-free trading. In Chicago, hogs were up $8 a hundred pounds—50 per cent higher than yesterday's quotations. In East St. Louis, the jump was nearly 90 per cent.

In removing meat controls, Mr. Truman also left the way open for abandonment of wage controls by the end of the year if not sooner.

The President acted under severe political pressure from Republicans and members of his own party who have bombarded the White House for relief from the meat shortage. Meat had reached top position in the congressional campaign which ends with the general election three weeks from today.

The American Meat Institute, which speaks for more than 600 packers, warned consumers it may take weeks to re-fill the empty pipelines from the cattle ranges to kitchen ranges. When meat does return, packers said, prices initially are going to be considerably higher than OPA ceilings.

The order to decontrol meat today was specific. But no dates were given for further decontrol orders which, the President said, would be issued as rapidly as our economic security permitted. Some quarters predicted wage controls would be abolished by the end of the year, if not before.

The President in his address said a reckless group of selfish men sought political advantage by encouraging sellers to gamble on removal of price controls. And he charged that many business men were hoarding their goods.

Meat controls came off in an atmosphere of bitter reproach all around. Typical comment generally favored the freeing of meat. But often in sharp language.

Speaking in Columbus, O., Taft said he was for meat decontrol. "But why didn't the President do it in June?" he asked. "There would have been no OPA fight. Is this action for politics only?"

Rep. James M. Curley, D. Mass., said: "The President's action decontrol."

The Columbia Broadcasting system said it had anticipated the GOP request and had offered it the 15-minute period tonight to reply.

The GOP speaker has not yet been named.

Carroll Reece, chairman of the Republican national committee, demanded the same amount of radio time that Mr. Truman had on grounds that the President's speech was political in nature.

The Columbia Broadcasting system said it had anticipated the GOP request and had offered it the 15-minute period tonight to reply.

James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union, described the action as the "straw that breaks the camel's back" in the trend toward runaway inflation.

He acknowledged, however, that the President "did the only thing he could do under the circumstances."

Robert W. Watson, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, termed the action "long overdue," but said that "except for those who eat meat, the (Continued on Page Two)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—Highlights of President Truman's meat decontrol speech:

There is only one remedy left—that is to lift controls on meat. Accordingly, the secretary of agriculture and the price administrator are removing all controls on livestock, and food and feed products therefrom—tomorrow.

(This) action means that the program for lifting other controls will have to be accelerated. I have directed all the agencies of government to cooperate in speeding up those plans to an extent compatible with our economic security.

The real blame, however, lies at the door of reckless group of selfish men who, in the hope of gaining political advantages, have encouraged sellers to gamble on the destruction of price control.

Responsibility for (the meat shortage) rests squarely upon a few men in congress who, in the (Continued on Page Two)

Removal Of Controls
Brings Mixed Reactions

By United Press

President Truman's about-face on meat controls brought mixed reactions today from industry, labor and political leaders, but nearly all agreed that it would mean more meat on the nation's dinner tables.

Nearly all agreed, too, that the President's decision meant the death knell of controls generally, possibly even an early end to the office of price administration.

The various spokesmen differed, however, on the effect the removal of meat price controls would have on the economy as a whole, with labor officials, for the most part, prophesying a race toward inflation, and industry leaders complaining that the action "didn't go far enough."

Republican party leaders welcomed the action but hinted that it was a pre-election "trick" to gain Democratic votes by ending the meat famine.

Jack Kroll, national director of the CIO's political action committee, expressed disappointment over the decontrol of meat but implied that his organization would continue to support the administration.

"The President correctly laid responsibility for the present shortage on those special interests who care nothing about the welfare of the millions of Americans and who are determined to wreck Franklin D. Roosevelt's program," he said.

James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union, described the action as the "straw that breaks the camel's back" in the trend toward runaway inflation.

He acknowledged, however, that the President "did the only thing he could do under the circumstances."

Robert W. Watson, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, termed the action "long overdue," but said that "except for those who eat meat, the (Continued on Page Two) serves commendation. Now if he would remove OPA, it would be the greatest blessing to befall America since the end of the war."

Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO):

"Now, for the second time in a year, will a miracle be wrought. Cows, which today do not exist, tomorrow will be born, reared, fattened, marketed, and in 24 hours will be on the shelves of your butcher shop. This miracle will come about because the great meat trust has forced organized shortages into a political club."

Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R. O.: "A substantial portion of the nation's future meat supply has been destroyed by the stupendous stupidity of the administration. That will make the process of adjustment more difficult and probably more costly. In my opinion, the American people have had enough of the 'on-again-off-again' Hanne-gan-administration and after Nov. 5 it will be 'off-again' permanently."

The President said decontrol of meat could not be isolated from other stabilization controls because meat is so important a part of living costs. He reminded that Price Administrator Paul Porter and Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson had been removing controls on thousands of items.

"The action which will be taken tomorrow (today) in freeing meat from controls," he continued, "means that their programs of lifting controls will have to be accelerated under existing legal standards."

"I have directed all agencies of government to cooperate in speeding up these plans to an extent compatible with our economic security."

"This does not mean the end of controls now. Some items, like rent, will have to be controlled for a long time to come. Other items, consisting of certain basic materials and other commodities of which there is now a grave shortage, will have to remain under control until production of them has been greatly increased."

"As we speed up the removal of price controls, the removal of wage controls will also have to be accelerated. In this way we shall move steadily—and as quickly as we safely can—toward a free economy and free collective bargaining."

"No one," Mr. Truman said, "is more anxious to get rid of these controls than I am."

Charges that Mr. Truman decontrolled meat for political purposes were inevitable. The order was in conflict with his most recent remarks on the subject. It came after the build-up of spectacular political pressure on the White House by apprehensive Democratic congressional candidates. The President consistently had condemned the kind of law under which congress compelled him to administer price control. But he also had stood firmly against decontrol.

Less than three weeks ago, on Sept. 26, Mr. Truman read to his news conference a prediction that the normal autumn run of grass fed cattle should begin to appear with a consequent improvement of the meat supply. He held then that livestock ceilings were fair and equitable.

"An increase in prices," he told his September news conference, "or the abandonment of price control on meat now would, in the long run, add to rather than solve our difficulties."

Last night the President said bitterly that he had been forced by "selfish interests" in the livestock industry and by a "reckless group" in congress to decontrol meat. He said he honestly and sincerely had tried to administer "this feeble" price control law.

"All the government agencies have made the same vigorous effort," he continued.

"From the outset, however, the very forces responsible for the weakening of the law in the congress have demanded the lifting of even the inadequate controls which congress had enacted. Besides, many members of congress and many candidates have pledged themselves to vote for the removal of price controls as soon as the new congress meets."

He said many business men thus

MEAT TO COME BACK SLOWLY

American Meat Institute ignored completely any mention of prices. The institute, spokesman for 600 of the nation's packers, said distribution "pipelines" were completely empty and that the famine was at its postwar worst.

"Removal of OPA control will not mean much more meat for consumers in the immediate future," the institute said. It added, however, that an "early spurt in marketings is expected and that this should start improvement in the supply situation fairly soon."

H. M. Conway, research director of the National Livestock Producers association, said livestock would begin flowing to packers within a week. This means, he said, there will be "more meat" within 10 days.

George R. Dressler, executive secretary of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, said the demand probably would remain out of line with supply for about 90 days. "Prices will rise as much as we regret it," Dressler said.

The most optimistic prediction came from Memphis, where leading packers said beef would appear on the market within one day to one week. They said, however, that pork would not be seen in quantity until February.

Industry spokesmen agreed there would be a longer delay on bacon and pork chops. They said farmers had reduced hog raising because of profit uncertainties.

At Denver, F. E. Moilin, president of the American National Livestock association, said beef in feed lots in the corn belt which had been held back the last few weeks now would go to market. He predicted cattle slaughtering would be back to normal after Jan. 1, 1947.

But L. M. Pexton, president of the Denver union stockyards, said it would be June 1, 1947, before the nation is getting its pre-war supply again.

Pexton said it would be June before prices return to "normal."

service of selfish interests, have been determined for some time to wreck price controls no matter what the cost might be to our people.

As we speed up the removal of price controls, the removal of wage controls also will be accelerated. In this way we shall move steadily—and as quickly and safely as we can—toward a free economy and free collective bargaining.

There are reports of widespread disregard and violations of the price control law. Experience shows that this leads to a tendency to disregard the sanctity of other laws. I need not point out the danger of such a public attitude.

The secretary of agriculture reports that his investigation shows that the Mexican border may be opened at once. When that happens, a substantial number of cattle from Mexico will come into this country.

No one is more anxious to get rid of these (wage and price) controls than I am. But before we get rid of them we must be sure that the people as a whole—not some special interests—will be benefited.

In the long run that which is best for the nation is best for all the people. Going forward in that spirit, we can win a sound and lasting peace-time economy, with high production and prosperity such as this nation has never known before.

Moore and other tavern operators have complied with all regulations of the Ohio department of liquor control.

Moore says the action is instituted "by him on behalf of himself and all other persons similarly situated . . . and that the action is one of common and general interest."

Chief McCrady's prohibition order was based on Ohio's 58-year-old law banning the sale of intoxicants within two miles of any agricultural fair.

The injunction application contends that the repeal of prohibition in 1919 nationally, and the repeal of the Crabbe Act by the Ohio legislature in 1933, invalidates the state law enacted in 1888.

his mind, and said he was trying to keep what he called his dignity until the end. He didn't sleep well last night.

Jodi remarked that basically religion must be love. Frick said, "I hope we won't have to wait long." Seys-Inquart's thoughts were on deep, complicated theological matters.

Wilhelm Keitel, the military man to the last, said the execution was harder on his family than himself. Fritz Sauckel, boss of the Nazi slave labor, was reported reading fairy tales along with his biblical research. Frank was engrossed in a long poem called "Holy Night" by Ludwig Thoma.

Rosenberg, scolding the Bible and reiterating his convictions of atheism, was reading a German novel called "The Violin."

Both Rosenberg and Frick, irritable and pettish, complained about prison regulations requiring them to keep their hands outside the blankets when they slept. It is colder here this week.

For the last week a spokesman at the prison has been telling correspondents that there was no gallows erected in the jail. Today he refused to answer whether there was or was not.

The report that the executions would be completed in about three hours gave rise to speculation that two separate gallows might be used. That would give about 15 minutes to each hanging.

According to this unconfirmed speculation, one of the gallows would be made ready while the other was in use, thus speeding up the overall process.

President offers no relief from OPA.

"So long as OPA continues to prevent production of goods . . . prices will continue to rise and runaway inflation will be an increasing danger," he said.

At least two AFL unions heralded the action and demanded an early end to wage controls as well.

"If the President removes all controls, we'll get some meat for our people," said John P. Busarello, president of United Mine Workers district 5, at Pittsburgh. "Maybe the boys will be able to mine more coal."

Earl W. Jimerson and Patrick Gorman, president and secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Association of Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen (AFL), said in a joint statement that "a meat-hungry nation is happy" over lifting of controls.

"We regret that he did not end wage controls, and we will continue the fight to eliminate them as well as the OPA in its entirety except for rents," they said.

Joe Ollman, northwest regional director of the CIO Packinghouse Workers, on the other hand, said the action was another step toward inflation and predicted that it would result in increased living costs and, consequently, renewed demands for wage boosts and a possible new rash of strikes.

SOURLAS TELLS WHY HE FIGHTS AGAINST REDS

Dreaded Greek Chieftain Says He Never Kills in Malice

Editor's Note: United Press Correspondent Robert Vermillion has obtained the first interview ever granted by Gregori Sourlas, the dreaded Greek bandit chieftain. In the following dispatch, Sourlas explains just why he and his rightist bands fight the Communists. Vermillion sought out the bearded bandit in his hill-country headquarters in an effort to get first hand information on the issues involved in the Greek fighting.

BY ROBERT VERMILLION
United Press Staff Correspondent
SERDELI, THESSALY, Oct. 10 (Delayed)—Gregori Sourlas, the rightist bandit chieftain whose name means death itself to Greek Communists, said today that he never kills in malice.

Sourlas said he learned late in 1943 that Communists in Greece planned to attack the British and seize the government as soon as the country was liberated.

"I thought their purpose was national when we were fighting together in the resistance movement," he said. "I thought their purpose was to fight the Germans and Italians, but I learned differently and left with some of my men."

"The Italians burned my house. The Communists came later and stole my sheep—and I began to fight the Communists. I had protected even British soldiers in my home before the Italians burned it—and for that I suppose I am considered a Fascist."

Sourlas is a giant of a man. He wears a beard and his flowing dark brown hair touches his shoulders. He is alleged to have supported himself since 1941 by looting towns and road convoys with not too much political discrimination. But most of all he is feared by the Communists.

While Sourlas talked a young man wearing a spectacular costume entered the room. This was "George," Sourlas' mysterious assistant, who is believed to be the son of a wealthy Athens family. He was dressed in long, white stockings, a dark blue skirt, and a large, grey, Russian-type hat. A small, gold-framed photograph of King George II was pinned to his blouse between criss-crossing bandoleer ammunition belts.

"My name is George Miller," he said. "Like my old chief Sourlas, I am dedicated to fighting Communists. I fought with the great Rimini brigade in Italy (a Greek mountain brigade which fought for the Allies). As we fought there, we will fight now—without thought of life or danger. We invite Communists to come here if they wish to kill us—and we will all die facing them with smoking rifles in our hands."

"We are a poor band with only 35 rifles and no bullets," George said. "We seek only peace—a peace without Communists who creep into our villages and kill, loot, ravage and burn."

Sourlas said the Communists had whittled his one-powerful band down to 40 men—of whom I counted at least 60 during our interview. He said he had nothing left of his former greatness except a bad reputation. Sourlas said he could not even get support from the government for his fight against the Communists—and he regards this as a double-cross of the first order.

The prefect of Larissa—where Sourlas and his men have been active—announced a month ago that all bandits, regardless of their political coloring, would be arrested and jailed if caught. This order placed Sourlas in the same class with leftist bandits, but the government has made no effort to arrest him—although officials know quite well where he is hiding.

Sourlas was asked if he and his men ever attacked villages. "No, it's a lie," he replied, "only the Communists loot, kill, and burn."

SUPREME COURT JUDGE SPEAKS AT KIWANIS CLUB

"Humor and Drama in the Law" was the topic of Judge Charles B. Zimmerman, of the Ohio supreme court, at the Kiwanis Club meeting held Monday evening in Hanley's.

He told of humorous incidents encountered in his 20 years of practice and almost 13 on the supreme court bench. Stating "there is excitement and drama" in the courts, he went on to outline some interesting happenings in the long history of the supreme court.

Original court was set up for the Northwest Territory with three judges. When Ohio became a state the present system of courts was set up with three judges on the supreme court and they traveled over the state holding court in each county. Since then the supreme court has been increased to seven judges.

Judge Zimmerman said the most dramatic incident in the court history came in 1859 when the chief justice and two judges ruled in favor of a federal court decision on a fugitive slave case. He said the action of Chief Justice Joseph R. Swan and his associates prevented what would amount to almost secession of the state.

The judge urged his hearers to

ELECTRICIAN ACCUSED OF RESISTING ARREST

Accused of resisting an officer and with having been intoxicated and disorderly, Charles George, 36, electrician, Route 3, Circleville, was freed under $200 bond, Monday, awaiting a hearing at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the court of Mayor Ben H. Gordon.

Patrolman Turney Ross said that when he arrested George at 9:30 p. m. Saturday on West Main street, George resisted. He was subdued by the patrolman, where he was treated for skull lacerations, and was then removed to the city jail. Subsequently George was released under bond.

OHIO GAS TAX COLLECTIONS UP BY $10,500,000

COLUMBUS, Oct. 15—Ohio collected almost $10,500,000 more in gasoline taxes during the first eight months of 1946 than it did during the comparable period in 1945 when wartime rationing was effective, it was announced today by K. K. Douglas, chief of the state gasoline tax division.

Through August 1946, collections of the three-cents a gallon gas tax and one-cent liquid fuel tax totaled $38,811,464. The 1945 total for the corresponding period was $28,385,165.

NUMEROUS U. S. RESIDENTS HAVE ROYAL RELATION

Most Americans Of English Stock Said Related To Kings Or Barons

BY ROBERT RICHARDS

United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Oct. 15—It may embitter your envious neighbors to know it, but you could be blood kin to a king. Or, at least, have a baron's skeleton locked inside the family closet.

That is, if you spring from pure English stock.

Miss Mabel Washburn, crack genealogist and president of the National Historical Society, said today that if you're English from skull to toe (Scotch and Irish doesn't count) you're kin to every person who lived in England in the year 1150.

"It was a small country then," she explained, "and everyone—from top to bottom—would be your kinsman."

Miss Washburn insisted that she couldn't say the same if you were of French or Spanish descent, or if your uncle came from Indonesia. Populations of other nations were much larger than England's in those days and subject to constant fluctuation.

Miss Washburn isn't one to deal in exact numbers, but she also believes that there may be around 300,000 people in the U. S.—many in blissful ignorance—who have at least one ancestor who sailed aboard the Mayflower.

"That's the nice thing about my business, Miss Washburn said. 'People sometimes discover such nice things about themselves.'"

It seems, if you go back far enough, you're kin to so many different citizens that, with a little sensible pruning, you can make your family tree sprout rosebuds from top to bottom.

The first six generations are the toughest. If you get past them, it's easy to lose the wife-beaters or baby-killers in the crowd.

For instance, Miss Washburn figures that George Washington was descended from the rulers of every medieval country in Europe, and that his blood line was linked with that of all the nobles who forced old king John to come across with the magna charta.

"That's what made Washington such a great leader," she explained.

People have paid Miss Washburn as high as $15,000 to probe their family background, but she turns all the profits over to the historical society.

One middle-aged bachelor got into a quarrel with his rich sisters and decided that he would cut them out of his will.

"His family came from Oxfordshire," Miss Washburn said, "and so he decided to find out who was the present head of the clan and to leave all his money to him."

Miss Washburn took up the search and it required several months.

"But I couldn't help him," she said. "I went back through the family records and discovered that every male of each generation, except his own direct ancestors, had died without issue."

The poor bachelor was stuck. This made him the head of his family.

Miss Washburn never learned what he finally did with his money.

THREE MOTORISTS FINED IN COURT OVER WEEKEND

Robert L. Hammond, Columbus, arrested by State Highway Patrolman L. G. Ridenour on U. S. Route 23 on a charge of non-possession of a driver's license, was fined $50 and costs, Sunday, by Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland. Two other motorists were penalized by Justice Eveland.

Mrs. Vonda McIntyre, of Kentucky, charged by State Highway Patrolman C. E. Wells with speeding 65 miles an hour on U. S. Route 22, was fined $15 and costs.

Harold O. Root, Columbus truck driver, was fined $10 and costs after Patrolman Ridenour said Root parked his truck on the yellow line on Route 23 near Circleville. Justice Eveland suspended $5 of the fine when it was disclosed that Root is the father of 10 children.

VFW CLUB LOOT IS ESTIMATED AT MORE THAN $200

Search was being continued by police, Tuesday, for thieves who broke into and looted the club-rooms of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, 217 North Court street, Friday night.

A police report said the loot included $200 in coins, $8 in pennies in rolls, and 18 cartons of cigarettes.

Entrance was gained by forcing a first floor window. The burglars smashed a locked door to gain access to the basement bar and club rooms where they stole the cigarettes, money, and a quantity of liquor. Slot machines were badly damaged, police said, in order to obtain the coin contents.

CONSTITUTION ADOPTED

PARIS, Oct. 15—France had a constitution today for the first time since the liberation, and Gen. Charles De Gaulle was established as a potential political factor despite his failure to prevent adoption of the document in Sunday's referendum.

SOAP SHORTAGE MAKES MRS. O. VERY UNHAPPY

Scribe Out To Debunk 'Doc' Who Says Bathing Is Not Necessary

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—The Pollyannas in pants on the federal payroll are getting me down.
They're finding silver linings in every empty meat box, lard can, and sugar jar.

The less candy we eat, they claim, the fewer holes we'll get in our teeth. They say that without fat to fry our potatoes, our stomachs will last longer.

Now we've got a doc in the marble sanctum of the public health service who says not to worry about the soap shortage.
Bathing isn't really necessary, he adds, because washing our ears is only a habit. Soaping ourselves may be fun, but it won't make us feel any better.

This anonymous sawbones says he's sure of this. One of his pals is an Indian who hasn't had a bath in 60 years and he's 60 years old.
The doc says Chief Dirty Neck is one of the healthiest men on the reservation.

When my bride read this in the newspapers, she blew up. She didn't exactly froth (soap being scarce in the Othman household), but she said I should look up this medico. If he was tattle-tale gray, she said, well and good. He was an honest man. But if he was fresh-scrubbed pink in color and his shirt was clean, then she said
I should expose him.

I regret to announce that the government's exponent of the bathless life looks as clean as the next fellow. He also smells faintly of lavender. He is a hypocrite. In addition he's off-the-record. Won't allow his name to appear in print.

This probably is just as well.
Mrs. O. otherwise would grab him by the ear and plunge him into a tub of slipso-dipso, the modern-miracle phoney soap. This looks like soap, but she believes it is made of muriatic acid and ashes from an atomic bomb factory. Doc, she washes the dishes in this.

It makes no suds. But it gets the grease off the gravy bowl. It also takes the skin off my favorite dish washer's hands. These are sore. So is she.

I kept your secret, Doc; I didn't reveal your name, but she said she wondered how the Washington facilities were at the public health service? I am presuming that these are not off-the-record, too.

There seems to be no shortage of soap in the health service's washrooms! over each washbowl is a container of olive oil soap, free for the pushing of a button. My bride said she was glad to hear this, Doc.

She said that when she'd given you a slipso-dipso treatment so you would appreciate her suffering, she would let you take her dirty dishes down to Constitution avenue and wash same in your soothing soap.

Her only worry, Doc, is your bathless Indian. Keep him away from her dishes. She's not concerned about his dropping the plates. You know what she's worrying about, Doc.

She says federal officials may enjoy associating with Chief Dirty Neck. She says you can have him as a house guest. She doesn't want him. She wants soap.

Not soft soap from government spokesmen, Doc, but stuff that makes lather on the dish rag.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS

TOO many people dismiss the damage resulting from young pranksters shooting up the neighborhood with the so-called "harmless" 22 rifle or other light firearm with the attitude that "boys will be boys".

In addition to numerous reports of song bird killing, roadsign and other serious acts of destruction, telephone and power companies report increased damage and service interruptions due to bullets piercing cables and power lines.

These heavy cables carry as many as 360 tiny wires that maintain telephone communication from coast to coast and in addition furnish the power transmission necessary for radio networks. A 22 rifle slug through such a cable usually cuts dozens of these tiny threads of communication. When your radio announcer breaks in and explains that "due to circumstances beyond our control we cannot bring you the remainder of the program", there is trouble somewhere along these miles of cable and many times it all happens where some youngsters "just got a bullseye" with his 22.

Parents and grown-ups can help considerably with a bit of informational advice when young Tommy starts out for "target practice".

THE EASY WAY

THAT KP duty the men griped about is paying dividends to their wives now.

Before the war an electric dishwasher, or mixer, or automatic garbage gobbler may have sounded extravagant, but now all the girl he came home to has to do is mention peeling potatoes, or washing dishes and her point is won. Such conversation brings before the veteran such overwhelming memories of kitchen duty in the army that he's only too willing to ease the house-keeping load at home.

Electric appliance manufacturers are getting orders for their most elaborate equipment from veterans living on farms, in pre-fabricated houses, or any other kind of home that will hold the modern machinery.

The time gained by such improvements can be an asset to any whole family.

ART DETECTIVE

A different kind of detective is Dr. Maxilian Toch whose life job is uncovering false works of art. Working in a fully equipped laboratory, Dr. Toch subjects suspected paintings to photography, X-Ray and chemical tests. Brush work of a painter is as individual as a finger print. A bit of pigment picked up with a hypodermic needle will reveal chemicals whose use is dated, thus classifying the picture.

There are tricks in all trades apparently, and criminals, too, in all of them, even in the arts.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE.... Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Awake and up shortly after hearing George driving his cattle back to the fields following the morning milking. Wonder how that fellow keeps up. Out and about his tasks before 5 in the morning and still hard at his tasks by electric lights at night. Belowstairs shoveling more precious coal to that hungry furnace and then up for the morning coffee and the cigarette that takes the place of toast. Soon away for downtown, carefully skirting the bantam hen and her chicks that spend most of their day defying death on the main highway.

Here and there buildings going up for the Pumpkin Show, the high school's being the first up. And strangers on the corners, every one as evidently carnival as though bearing a banner. No other group except men of the newspaper carry such distinct marks of their trade. Take a good look at the show this year, for it probably will be the last of a long, long series. Certainly no need for two Fall shows, and the fair, through heavy investment, has become a permanent institution.

Met and chatted with Bill Murray, now just past the 80 mark. That's a long time. Met Cotton Clark, just out after a serious illness, but now on the mend and expecting to be back at his Western Union ticker within a week or ten days. And Hulse Hays, who is interested in promotion of National Air Mail Week. Jack Dunlap, the master farm manager, told me that 10 to 15 percent of the Pickaway corn will not ripen, but will not be lost for it may be fed if moved rapidly. There's the busiest young man in these parts.

Here comes Bill Radcliff, who will take over the common pleas bench soon, but not soon to satisfy Emmett Hunt, incumbent, who prefers the practice of law. Met Ray Cook, the councilman, and discussed city affairs, past, present and future. Ray was somewhat irked because he had

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—The only surprise of the Paris meeting of the war nations was that after Russia had rigged the conference securely, the ropes got loose and she was slowly backward.

You will recall she would let the 21 nations act only by a two-thirds majority. She figured upon 8 sure votes, including some border nations like Norway. In this way she intended to prevent any important action by the nations regarding the treaties she had managed to conclude with Messrs. Byrnes, Bevin and Bidault—or as much of them as she had agreed to.

But upon the important matters like the question of an uncommunist Trieste and a free Danube, she could get only 6 votes—her own 3 (Russia, White Russia and Ukraine) and 3 satellites (Poland, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.) The balloting upon these issues went 15 to 6 against her.

Now these were the most vital undecided issues from the big four discussions because Russia wishes to deliver Trieste to Yugoslavia and Communism, and the Danube river must be dominated and held closed by her satellite nations bordering it, or she will not be able to maintain her economic empire in central Europe.

If the adopted French compromise on Trieste is maintained, she will have only an open chance to make that section securely communistic sometimes in the future while open trade upon the Danube river will strengthen there the theory of free trade among nations, although actually there is little direct trading use we can make of the river.

Yet these steps toward peace are somewhat intangible. The verdicts of the 21 nations conference are to be renewed immediately in another meeting of the big four to be held simultaneously with the United Nations assembly in New York October 23. At that meeting Russia will have her usual veto power, and in view of the sharp, if not sour, protest she lodged in Paris against the decisions which went against her, few expect she will fail to use her atomic weapon of diplomacy which has stultified most of the final peace conclusions thus far. So while the treaties were adopted at Paris, they were not accepted by Russia and less hopeful action is likely to follow.

Paris showed progress in one other respect. Russia was breathing fire at the opening, using strong and threatening language, accusing the western powers of this and that. At the end she was comparatively mild rhetorically, and her government newspapers which had been saying at the outset that the capitalistic nations intended to make war on Russia, took a more sensible view of matters, and exuded a spirit of moderation. If Stalin had been trying to build up his people to war against the United States and Britain, his policy was definitely broken at Paris.

The inner scheme of that meeting, therefore, is not difficult to discover. Mr. Byrnes stood his ground, in the face of threats from Russia and sabotage at home (Wallace affair) and, for once, Russia gave air, if only hot air, and prestige if not ground.

These changes can easily be overestimated. Actually they show only that about two-thirds of the world, or slightly more, is not in favor of Russia's attempt to build a new empire today and would like to see obstacles placed in the path of Communism. They also show Russia found she could not maintain her belligerent diplomacy, or

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

PURPOSE OF A SAFETY

WE HAVE all read and heard the definition of a "safety play" as "the intentional giving up of one or more tricks in order to increase the likelihood of making the contract." That has the same weakness as most bridge definitions, which ordinarily don't take in enough territory or else cover too much. A safety play may also be used to prevent too bad a defeat of the contract, even though it seems to give up all hope of making the contract.

Ordinarily you would expect South to take that out to 4 Spades, but with his even distribution and no ruffing chance, he unaccountably decided to let it alone. He was lucky his side did not lose an easy game because of his pass.

East made the obvious lead of his club K. North won and ran four spades, then led the heart K to the A. West sent back the diamond 6, whereupon North did a bit of counting. If he lost a finesse to East, the latter could murder him with clubs at 100 a trick. By taking the A, however, he could be sure of eight tricks and only down one, though he would thus apparently give up all chance for game.

The risk of loss by the finesse was so great that he played the A and was overjoyed to see the K drop. That made it a cinch to get all the rest of the tricks except one, giving him two extras.

In other words, this time the safety play did not cost the immediate sacrifice of any trick, but instead produced contract plus two more.

Penicillin Found Helpful For Men's Beard Infection

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

OF INTEREST to men is the news that another troublesome and stubborn infection, an infection of the beard, known as sycosis barbae, has yielded to penicillin.

As a general rule, this disorder is produced by an invasion of staphylococci germs around the hair roots. Entrenched here, they cause red, inflamed areas of the skin and the formation of blisters which break and the fluid hardens on the skin. Ordinarily this condition is difficult to clear up, and as time goes on it becomes increasingly irritating and unsightly.

Penicillin Effective

Recently Dr. A. Burrows and his co-workers of England found penicillin ointment effective in giving speedy relief for sycosis barbae. They found that penicillin in this form is more convenient to apply, gives more lasting effects and better results than when used in a solution.

Twenty patients were treated, the penicillin-containing cream being rubbed over the beard area and around the nostrils three times daily.

Of 13 who had had the beard infection, from 1 to 14 years, 6 were cleared up within six weeks and 6 others were greatly improved. In 4 of 6 patients who had the condition for less than ten months, the infection was cleared up within three weeks, and in a fifth case the infection was suppressed after five weeks of treatment. It is suggested that the treatment be continued for a few weeks after the sycosis barbae is apparently cured.

Avoiding Recurrence

There are other things which can be done to aid in lessening the chances for a recurrence. These include getting rid of any nasal discharge, infections of the eyelids, ear infection, and infections which may be present in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses or elsewhere in the body. Contaminated shaving brushes and wash cloths should be discarded.

In the more severe cases, treatment with X-ray to cause the hair of the beard to fall out may be advisable, together with the penicillin treatment.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

ABBY FOUND a cab, outside the auction room, and drove to the apartment. She met one of Hageney's best workers as she was going up the steps, a tall spare woman. They spoke and Mrs. Eaton said, "We've missed you. I've told Mr. Lambert to be sure and tell you every time I've seen him."

Pleasant to be missed; to feel that she was slowly becoming part of Barry's pattern, a pattern into which Mrs. Eaton fitted. Abby went lightly up the stairs. Someone had a radio on, in the flat below. It made a terrific noise.

She put her key in the lock. Val and Barry. Sitting together on the couch... their glasses making rings on the table in front of them... Val had been crying. Her powder was streaked, her lipstick blurred. There was lipstick on Barry, too, on his collar, on his cheek.

Abby spoke, as Barry jumped to his feet and Val, her devastated face, shocked into surprise, raised her hands automatically to her disheveled hair.

Abby said pitifully, "Barry—you wouldn't pitifully to the auction room..."

Something happens; something you dreaded, yet could not believe; something about which you had been warned, obligingly or openly, and what do you do?

You say the first thing that enters your bewildered mind, trivial, or absurd. You seize upon it; it is important; it has to be because what is really important doesn't bear thinking about.

Abby had a sense of disintegration... as if she were falling apart, her tight little world, with her, a world both heaven and earth.

No private heaven? No heaven at all, never.

Her face was crumpled as if a weeping child, but she did not cry. Her eyes were dry, they could see; they saw the quick relief in Barry's eyes; Val's slowly returning self-confidence.

"Abby," said Barry, and came toward her, "darling... I know the look a little..."

Val interrupted. "Abby... I called Barry... I asked him to see me, where we could talk alone... he had to help me..."

Abby walked past them. She didn't look at them. She heard what they said. It made no sense. She went into the bathroom and locked the door. Her hands were cold, but there was sweat on her palms, her forehead, all over her body. The bathroom was a dark little place. Darker now, but dizzy with flashes of light.

She knelt shook and hopelessness seized her; it was, at the moment, purely physical. She was very thoroughly sick.

Barry was hammering on the door. He was shouting... "Let me in, Abby, for Lord's sake!"

She sat on the floor and put her forehead against the cold rim of the tub. She shook, inside. But her hands were steadier. She felt better; the sickness had passed, physically. After a while she got up and took a bottle of mouthwash from the shelf. She rinsed her mouth. Then she washed her face. There was powder on the shelf, and a lipstick. She used them.

Barry had stopped hammering. Now, in the living room, he was shouting at Val. "Of all the blasted, crazy... she's sick, I tell you..."

Abby unlocked the door and walked out. Barry came through the door and took her by the shoulder. He said, "You'll listen to me..."

She looked at him; and he let her go. She said, "I'm going back to Fairton... you can do as you please..."

She went out then... nothing Val could say, and she tried to say something, and nothing Barry could say or do, would stop her. The door closed.

Barry picked up his high ball glass. There was still a little in it. He shattered it on the floor. The gesture released the tension in him. He said, "That's torn it."

Val was almost herself. She said, "Don't be dramatic. She'll get over it... you'll explain..."

"I'll be blue in the face," he assured her. "Where will it get me... even if she says she believes me... if there's always a doubt..."

"That's her hard luck," said Val coolly.

He said, "She hasn't grown up." "To do her justice, no woman ever grows up sufficiently to face what looks like a situation."

"It doesn't only look like it," he said gloomily.

Val said, "Well, I tried..."

They were silent. He walked around the room. He did not look at the portrait above the mantel. The portrait was Abby; but the eyes were empty of fear or shock, empty of reproach; the face was quiet; there was radiance in it, because the painter had loved his subject.

"What do we do next?" asked Val.

He said, "We get the heck out of here and to Fairton."

"She may have missed the train," said Val. "There isn't another one until around six."

"We'll take that."

"All right," she rose. "I'll put on my face," she said. She watched him prowling around the room. He seemed too big for walls... he looked uncivilized. She put her arms around him.

"Barry, it will be all right," she said.

He shook her off. "Be yourself. If you break something, it will show where it's been mended."

She said, "You can always tell the truth; that I threw myself at you."

"There's more to it than that. I set myself up as a target. Out of curiosity, and perhaps vanity. A man doesn't stop being curious or vain because he falls in love and gets married. She's a child, I tell you... I thought she'd outgrow it. Most people do. You did, I suppose, when you were 12. What a fool I am; I don't WANT her to grow up... except in her own time and her own way. She hadn't much childhood... not the right kind... in a way, she found what she'd missed, with me. I can't explain that; you wouldn't understand, anyway."

"Oh, snap out of it," said Val. "She's so crazy about you that you can commit murder and get away with it."

"I have, in a way, and I didn't get away with it. You and your frustrations!"

She said coolly, "Okay, blame it on me. But you didn't make it too difficult."

"Check," said Barry. "For a man in his right mind, and in love with his wife, runs away from his curiosity and his vanity."

He stopped prowling. He took her by the shoulders and shook her hard. Her swollen eyes shed, her hair fell about her face. He said, "Suppose you tell the truth. You don't want me, Val... not in the sense you tried to put over, just before Abby came in. You don't want any man. You never have. It's all window dressing; the come-and-get-me... the sultry stuff. Why in blazes don't you go into the movies? You could put it over. They'd call you... The Promise."

"Let me go."

"Sure," he did so abruptly that she nearly fell. He said, "Your marriage must suit you. You don't even have to put on an act. That's what got me, when I first knew you. I wasn't sure; I thought, I'd like to be... Then I married. His harsh voice broke. "And after that, there you were again, so I kept on wondering."

She said, "You're no right..."

"Suppose Abby hadn't come in? What then? Thanks for the consolation, darling, and shall we catch the train? Perhaps, next week, when you're in town I can get down. Abby will be busy with her hospital work and her father."

"That's it, isn't it? The Promise. Only you wouldn't keep it... short of a miracle. And you're married to a lot of money and a lot of paintings. You don't want to lose them. I'm not so safe an investment. So, what does it all mean?"

She said, "I won't listen. And I despise that old man. He makes my flesh creep." Then, furiously, "I said I love you. You might have—"

"Never," said Barry. "I might have found you out, in my own way, what makes you tick, or that you don't tick at all. But that hasn't anything to do with love... you wouldn't know that."

She said, "Neither would Abby." "She might," said Barry, "someday. Find your things, we're getting out of here."

"My face—"

"The heck with your face," he said.

For Tuesday, October 15

THE sidereal operations having a dramatic and far-reaching effect on the current and critical state of affairs should be grasped decisively and without any daily-dillying or attempts to sidestep or delay. The unusual occasion demands that the iron be struck while the incandescent glow is at its brightest, and while those in place and with power to render possible spectacular aid are in a mood for supporting and capitalizing brilliant strokes of ingenuity and skill.

Exceptional talent, or revolutionary techniques, are bound to culminate in promotion, preferment and long-range benefits, romantic and adventurous.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of exceptional opportunities for making excellent progress, with honors, promotion and breathtaking rewards and recognition, for unique ideas. Radical changes to new ways and means moving static conditions must be grasped with decision and audacity if the richest returns and goals are to be captured.

Shirking or temporizing might negative cherished prospects and shatter dreams of adventure and romance.

DAR Again Sponsors Citizenship Contest

State Winners To Be Given Trip To Washington

Mrs. Brunelle Downing and Mrs. Charles Gussman have been appointed as the committee in charge of the Pilgrimage contests for senior high school girls. This contest is sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution and will be conducted in every state in the union. Pickaway county tests will be given in January.

Interest in the contest among high school girls will be the highest in several years because the winners will be rewarded by a trip to Washington next May, as guests of the patriotic organization, sponsors believe.

Because of travel restrictions and hotel congestion during the war, D. A. R. good citizenship pilgrims received $100 war bonds instead of the trips to Washington. During the first part of the war the pilgrims made a trip to Chicago where the D. A. R. congress was held. After that all trips were cancelled.

For the first time since the war the continental congress will be held in Constitution Hall next May. Consequently the winning pilgrims will come to Washington and will be presented to the delegates attending the fifty-sixth congress on the opening night, May 19.

There will be 49 pilgrims, each representing a state and one the District of Columbia. During their stay in the nation's capital the girls will visit the White House, the Capitol, the library of congress, the United States supreme court, the National Gallery of Art, and many of the larger government departments. They also will be entertained at many functions held in their honor.

Mrs. John T. Gardner of East Greenwich, Rhode Island, national chairman of the good citizenship pilgrimage committee, declared that the interest already aroused in the contest this year indicates keen competition. She expects a larger number of contestants than at any previous time.

One good citizenship student is chosen from each four-year public senior high school enrolled in the contest. The winners are chosen for demonstrating the following qualities of citizenship to an outstanding degree, namely: dependability, leadership, service and patriotism.

Senior students choose by vote, three "good citizens" in their class. From these three the high school faculty selects one to represent her school. From this group, one is finally selected to represent her state as the "good citizenship pilgrim".

Each winner receives a certificate of award, and each good citizenship pilgrim is presented with an honor pin when she is introduced to the delegates of the D. A. R. congress.

The plan of rewarding high school students with a trip to Washington was conceived a number of years ago by Mrs. Ruth Bryn Owen Rohde, then a member of congress from Florida. She brought a group of students from Florida to the nation's capital each year. After the plan was adopted by the D. A. R. and has proved very popular. Mrs. Rohde is an honorary vice chairman of the good citizenship pilgrimage committee. Mrs. Russell William Magna, honorary president general of Holyoke, Mass., the originator of the D. A. R. pilgrimage is now the honorary consultant of the D. A. R. committee.

REPUBLICANS IN QUICK BLAST AT TRUMAN ACTION

Taft Says 'Planned Economy Was Absolute Breakdown' At Women's Meeting

BY TED S. ALEXANDER
United Press Staff Correspondent
COLUMBUS, Oct. 15—U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft, Ohio Republican, said last night as President Truman removed controls on meat that the national administration had "tried a planned economy" but that "the result was an absolute breakdown."

"The removal of meat controls is only part of the problem," Senator Taft told a banquet session of the Ohio Federation of Women's organizations.

Taft said "there is no one in the world with enough brains to sit in Washington and tell the people how to run their affairs."

Speaking at the convention's forum were Taft, national Republican party chairman, Rep. B. Carroll Reece of Tennessee, Radio Commentator Upton Close and former governor John W. Bricker who is a candidate for the U. S. senate.

"The issue is between freedom of the individual and a planned economy," Senator Taft said. He asserted that there could have been a compromise on the OPA but that the President wanted to maintain his war time powers in full."

He named the United States unemployment service, draft laws, proposed federalization of unemployment compensation and proposed socialized medicine as means through which the national administration sought to maintain or increase government powers.

Both Taft and Reece charged that politics had motivated the President to remove the meat controls.

Taft said the only reason President Truman would want to remove meat controls is "that he is afraid that if he does not he will defeat the Democratic party in the November election."

Reece said "the action should have been taken several months ago. What he is doing by executive order he can undo by executive order after the election."

Bricker declared that the time had come to abolish the OPA entirely. He said it has "created higher prices, more scarcities and more law violators than it was thought possible for this country to have."

Bricker said the country "is in a bitter battle to see if America will be controlled by a small minority or the great majority of the people."

Reece told the Ohio Republican women that the confused meat picture here is rapidly making our

DOCTOR STATES ALL WOMEN CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—Dr. Herbert A. Ratner said today any woman can be beautiful. The ugly ones have only themselves to blame, he said.

"Nature never creates an ugly woman," he said. "A few make themselves ugly, but if they scraped off a few layers of paint, they too would be beautiful."

Ratner, professor of preventive medicine at Loyola university, said that fat or skinny, short or tall, every female should be able to qualify to be somebody's pin-up queen—if she really wants to.

"Somewhere in the world there's a man to admire every woman," he said. "All the ladies have to do is find them and then catch them."

"But first, maybe they'd better wash their faces and read a good book so they'll have something to talk about."

He explained that he wasn't referring to "skin deep beauties" when he talked about attractive women.

"I mean the entire woman, mind, body and soul," he said. "The part that's still there after the paint fades and cracks."

government the laughing stock of the world.

"It is amusing, but it is also humiliating," Reece said. He called for Republican control of congress in November to "re-establish order, capable and honest government."

"The Republican party will exterminate the termites" in Washington, "and throughout the world-wide federal bureaucracy for which the American people are paying the bill," Reece said.

"I refer to the radical-minded followers of alien philosophies who have wormed their way into positions of influence and power in the Democratic administration," the national GOP spokesman said.

Thomas J. Herbert, GOP nominee for governor and moderator for the forum, earlier told the GOP women that the present state administration had a "do nothing attitude" in regard to a constructive tuberculosis control program.

He said "the issue—state and national—is all one piece. The new deal has extended from Washington to Columbus. It must be dug out at the roots."

The two-day Republican women's annual Fall convention was scheduled to end after a morning session today.

BOTH PARTIES SEE BIG VOTE

Democrats And Republicans Claim They Will Benefit At November Election

BY SANDOR S. KLEIN
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—Republican and Democratic strategists took a look at swelling voter registration figures today and promptly disagreed on which party would benefit most by a heavy turnout in the November elections.

Although the registration returns are still incomplete, each side saw indications of a greater vote on Nov. 5 than in the last off-year election of 1942.

Sam O'Neal, chief publicist for the Democratic national committee, looked at the figures this way:

"Any heavy registration in the past has always been held beneficial to the Democratic party. We don't see anything different this time."

Rep. Clarence J. Brown, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, gave this analysis:

"We've made some spot checks and you can bet the increase is a sure sign of a protest vote against the Democratic administration. Most of the increase appears to be in the suburban areas of big cities and the folks who live there aren't the ones being brought out by the CIO political action committee."

O'Neal said Louis Beane, a statistical expert who does his pencil work for the Democrats, estimates that about 90 per cent of the 48,000,000 who voted in the presidential election of 1944 would cast ballots this year.

"And if that proves to be right," O'Neal observed, "we'll win."

Brown, whose office is just a few blocks up the street from Democratic headquarters, said he has checked with election officials in various key states and found that much of the heavier registration is due to "the middle class, small businessmen and housewives."

"And these groups have suffered from the administration's controls," Brown added. "It's a protest vote."

The Democratic spokesman cited the heavy registration in New York City as indicative of victory for his party's ticket in New York state. Latest returns showed that 2,715,563 registered in the city as against 2,123,169 in 1942.

O'Neal said there were signs in other key states that the Democrats were not going to lose their grip. For instance, he pointed out, in Allegheny county, Pa., which includes Pittsburgh, the new enrollment showed 41,679 Democrats to 29,546 Republicans.

Brown said he knew about the Allegheny county registration and conceded it was the one place where the CIO political action committee had "done a good job." But in other places, Brown claimed, labor is "pretty apathetic" toward the PAC's get-out-the-vote campaign.

DOG BITES REPUBLICAN
CHICAGO—Julius Hock had always said his dog was smart. A Republican precinct captain decided to call on Hock, known as a strong Democrat. The dog took a look at the Republican and bit him.

Chaucer, early English poet, in 1386 referred to his "spectakel" through which he was able to recognize his friends, say the Better Vision Institute.

Milk Mixture for Stomach Ulcers
A recent radical discovery now used by doctors and hospitals everywhere has proven unusually successful in the treatment of stomach ulcers caused by excess acid. It is a harmless preparation yet so effective, in many cases the pains of stomach ulcers disappear almost immediately. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion, heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of LURIN from their druggist. LURIN contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonsful in a half glass of milk. Costs but little. Must satisfy or money refunded.

ANNUAL KIWANIS CONVENTION TO START TUESDAY

J. Wray Henry, 1947 president, Roscoe Warren, new vice president, and G. Guy Campbell, secretary are Circleville delegates to the 29th annual Ohio Kiwanis district convention which opens Tuesday in the Neil House, Columbus.

Alternates to the convention, which ends Friday, are A. W. Bosworth, the Rev. L. C. Sherburne and Dwight Steele.

Chairman Robert F. Hill, Columbus, announced entertainment for Kiwanians and their wives is scheduled in addition to talks by nationally known speakers and instructive conferences.

Guest speakers include Colonel Edgar A. Jett 3rd, manager, Great Lakes division, General Electric Co.; Thomas R. Reid, director of human relations, McCormick and Co., Inc., Baltimore; Bennett Chaple, assistant to the president, American Rolling Mill Company, Middletown; Harvey H. Hahn, Harry Foster Welch and others.

One of the highlights of the convention will be a musical program by the nationally famous Columbus Boychoir of 110 young voices, which will be presented Tuesday evening with the compliments of the Downtown Kiwanis Club of Columbus.

bulldozing tactics, in the face of this world opinion. They mean no more. Results are yet to be seen. The treaties may yet be scrapped by a Russian veto of the suggested vital changes. The peace discussions may be interminable, if in a more moderate tone.

While the heavy majority of the peoples of the world has found a way to express itself, it has not yet found the way to require an unwilling and uncompromising nation to accept its opinions or give ground to peace.

While it has become popular since Stalin said there would be no war, for everyone to say there will be no war, Stalin did not cut the size of the Red army to peacetime proportions from its stand of 6,000,000 (last accepted figure) and we are still spending $18 billions, yes billions, this year for armaments.

Actions will continue to speak louder than words—even the words in treaties.

Opinions expressed by the writer in this column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Circleville Herald.

We've never had a tire that sold as fast as the new B. F. Goodrich Silvertown

The better the tire, the faster it sells... that's why we've had such a hard time keeping the new B.F. Goodrich Silvertown in stock. There's extra demand because these tires are built with a wider, flatter tread that spreads the wear over a wider area. It's a proven tire of extra toughness and durability with millions of test miles on police cars, taxis and special test cars behind it.

Cook Electrically

Electric Cooking costs average less than a penny per meal per person. Even this low cost may be more than offset by other definite budget savings; savings in the food budget by reducing food shrinkage and cooking failures; and savings in cleaning and redecorating costs.

It's Clean

There's no cleaner way on earth to cook than with an Electric Range. There's no smoke or soot, energy clean as sunlight is delivered by the Electric Range. Scouring is out. Blackened curtains and walls go for good. It saves work every day in the week.

Hints on Etiquette

It is hospitable to accompany a guest to the front door and there bid him goodbye under ordinary circumstances. If, however, you are entertaining a number of people it is better to station yourself near the door, and bid the guests goodbye as the couples or groups leave.

Words of Wisdom

Politeness does not always evince goodness, equity, compliance, or gratitude, but it gives at least the appearance of these qualities, and makes man appear outwardly as he should be within. —Bruyere.

Today's Horoscope

A birthday anniversary today means that you have very definite ideas and a matter-of-fact way about you. You, however, lack imagination and enthusiasm. You are cautious, conservative, and have a goodly amount of business ability. You also enjoy good literature, are fond of nature, and seek the society of cultured people. You have many friends and are devoted to your family. Put some efficiency scheme into working order on this, your natal day. A new friend can prove to be very co-operative. Attack your problems today with accuracy, but not speed. Continue to "make haste slowly" all the day, otherwise errors will creep in. The moon enters Cancer at 4:25 p. m. fireplace, take an old cork and dip it in paraffin. You will find this is a help in cleaning the tiles.

When you heat paraffin for any purpose, heat only to 165 deg. F., and never let it get so hot it smokes.

Refrigerators should be defrosted whenever the frost becomes one-fourth to one-half inch thick.

thrilling moments, in the broadcast Tuesday, at 8 p. m. An Arabic manuscript, key to the location of a gold mine, plays a central part in the danger-packed story. Wally Maher stars as Shayne, Cathy Lewis portrays Phyllis Knight, his assistant.

DATE WITH JUDY

Planning a mallard hunt, Judy's father plans the purchase of several expensive decoys, but Mother overrules "Father Foster's Duck Decoys" and starts a peculiar chain of events, on "A Date With Judy", Tuesday, at 8:30 p. m. Judy rises to the emergency to help her father, and the result is unexpected, to say the least. The broadcast marks Louise Erickson's return as Judy, after a vacation in New York, and the return of Dick Grenna, just out of uniform, as Oogie Pringle. Hal Borne, war veteran who arrange music for all the Ginger Rogers-Fred Astaire films, bows in as the program's music director with this broadcast.

THE FALCON

Mike (The Falcon) Waring joins the search for a missing girl and unwittingly becomes allied with a former Nazi. When he learns the true identity of his partner, the master sleuth uncovers a fantastic plot for the liquidation of a former favorite of "der fuhrer," in "Death Is Always Employed," latest of the "Adventures Of The Falcon," Tuesday, (6:30-7 p. m., EST).

FORUM OF THE AIR

Continuing the series of broadcasts in connection with the coming elections, "The American Forum Of The Air" will debate the question, "Is the PAC a threat or a contribution to America," on the MBS broadcast Tuesday, (7:30-8:15 p. m., EST). Speakers will be Jack Kroll, chairman of the CIO-Political Action Committee, Dr. Frank Kingdon chairman of the National Citizens' Political Action Committee, Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio), chairman of the executive committee of the Republican National Committee, and Senator Joseph Ball (R., Minn.).
